WOMEN HEAR NOTED LECTURER AT CENTRAL UNION

College Club Evening was celebrated at Central Union Church yesterday evening where Mrs. Hannah Jenkins, director of design and art at Pomona College, California addressed the College Club and the church congregation.

It was a meeting of, for, and for, women essentially. The women were present but the address which was on "Women to the Front" concerned itself with the relation of women to world problems and the part which women must play in their solution.

White slavery, marriage, divorce, intemperance and other problems confronting women were handled by the speaker in plain language and her address throughout was characterized by its fluency and directness.

In conclusion, the speaker paid tribute to such women as Miss J. L. Adams and Miss Blasco who are still living and devoting their lives for the betterment of humanity and are giving their time to striving to make others happy with no thought for themselves.

"These are women to be proud of," said Mrs. Jenkins. "They are the women to get in touch with, to know and to emulate. The ones who are coming to the front and doing great things for humanity."

Mrs. Jenkins said in part: "Women to the Front! That sounds like a bugle call. When the reveille is sounded it means 'get up and get busy.' (It was your pastor who sounded the bugle—I am just going to give a little 'toot'.")

"This call comes to the army of church and college women throughout our land. Do not think I am here as a suffragette. No there is not a woman in our land who knows less of politics than I do. There are many like myself who care nothing for the franchise who would rather not be brought to the front in that way."

"Personally I might say I have no complaint against the gentlemen in their management of political affairs; I have fared well in the past and do not expect to live as long in the future as I could well afford to leave the ballot to the men—but how startlingly selfish that sounds, in the great rush of political, professional and commercial life. Conditions have changed. Women are forging ahead in every branch of professional and industrial life—then there is the great mass of working women in factory, shop, business and service. This problem of voting came to me forcibly one day when I went into one of our orange packing houses. There I listened without their knowing to a heated discussion on the campaign. The conclusion I arrived at was 'College Women and Church Women to the Front.' It is this illiterate working class that is going to make trouble and while I hate politics and would rather do almost anything rather than go to the polls. Yet if my vote will offset that of a woman who will be led by her emotions or be the tool of a boss, then it is my duty to vote."

Human Nature Unchanged.
"The part that women have played in politics in the past is that any criterion for us women of today? We might say conditions have changed—but human nature is not widely different from the days of the Renaissance. One difference there is and to our advantage in that we move and have our being among a vast army of college men—men who have annihilated instinct and are ruled by reason and understanding—so that we women are spared the necessity of being great diplomats."

"Think of the harrassing life of Isabella d'Este that queen of the Renaissance, a woman who could juggle with popes and emperors; was the world any better for her being in it? Yes, she faced and solved the problems of her times. She took a stand in social affairs admitting none to her salons but those noted for their morals and understanding. She gave an impetus to art, letters and music. She it was who made Leonardo and Titian famous; portrait painters sitting to both. She came to the front in her day lived up to the best that was in her."

"Another, Madame De Steel, the daughter of Necker, Napoleon's minister of finance. What a political life was hers. She was the only woman who dared to snub Napoleon. She found time for art, music and literature, her 'Corinne or Italy' is a classic you all know of her career—and so I could refresh your memories on the history of many women who came to the front for the betterment and uplifting of mankind. It is a far cry from the Renaissance to the present. Blessed is the woman in these days—who has a capacity for efficient efficiency for solving hard problems and today the one woman of all others to whom every woman in the land should do reverence is Jane Adams of Hull House Chicago. And now ladies of this city of the Pacific Cross Roads—the problems you are facing today and that will grow more complex with this mixed population and constant increase of foreign elements are problems that will tax your fortitude and Christian character."

White Slave Problem.
The white slave problem should occupy the serious and prayerful attention which is controlled by foreigners not confined to the white race. The lack of reverence for the Sacrament of marriage. Many women today would seem forget the 'bond' which they acknowledge before the world—to keep the flame of mentality burning but irreverently when asked the question 'Will you take this man, etc.' 'Yes,' with the mental reservation. For six months, give her time to get to Reno."

"Divorce and its great feeder laxity in high moral principles in the rich underworked social set, intemperance among women—these and many other problems confront you. What are you going to do about it? You will have a chance to make a return for the years of prayers and petitions that have been offered for your protection. You are all in the tendency for accomplishing great things. 'In unity there is strength.' I am sure Paul would be delighted if he were to come to the Central Union church and see how you are just as he would have you 'all of one mind.'"

"The Men and Religion Forward Movement,' combined with 'The Women to the Front Movement' will surely bring great results. The love of 'Good'—which is 'God' can only come through the avenue of learning—Paul's supplication. Now I beseech you brethren in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ that you all speak the same thing and that there be no divisions among you. That you be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment. Only through united effort and doing away with isms and sects can great things be accomplished."

"In the city of Claremont, the city of my adoption, in the one and only church (Congregational), we have thirty-five different denominations working harmoniously. Not a ripple ever disturbs the stream of steady going on there. With one exception which if it had not been that we were all of one mind and the prompt action of our men's union might have been a serious affair."

Hindus Protected.
"It was this way: A party of six Hindus came and camped in our suburbs. Some of the young men in town rashly ran them out—on pain of something dreadful happening to them if they ever returned. The men's union investigated the affair with the result that they brought them back, gave them a camping life, secured work for them, assured them of their protection. The outcome of that is, we now have one hundred Hindus in town. At the last communion on Commencement Sunday they were all in the gallery of the church watching the celebration of the Sacrament."

"These men have the church to themselves on Sunday from two to four and we have enough returned missionaries to teach them. They are industrious and good workmen. If we had not all been pretty much of one mind here would have been a real riot. It is trouble. We might have lost our grip on India."

"That is only a small part of the work being done in Claremont. Through united effort and the doing away with sects, our college, whose goal is to contribute to Christian Civilization has the largest missionary spirit I have ever met. Our student volunteers, men and women are in every part of the earth. Claremont is a mecca for returned missionaries. The cry of other lands and their needs is ever in our ears and the colleges greatest desire is to stop that cry by doing its share toward Evangelizing the world—peace and good will unto all lands."

OLD FASHIONED REMEDIES.

Science in surgery and electricity has advanced much in the past thirty years, but the treatment of disease by the old fashioned remedies made from roots and herbs, has never been improved upon.

This may be seen by the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, and known today as the great remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine.

For news and the truth about it, all people buy the Star-Bulletin.
